

LSP Association 2020 Board of Director Elections Candidate Statement

Jason Chrzanowski, LSP

I am a Senior Scientist and Licensed Site Professional (LSP) with Roux Associates in Woburn, Massachusetts. I was recently nominated in spring 2020 as a candidate to serve in my first ever term on the LSPA Board of Directors. My prior leadership role within the LSPA was serving as the co-chair of the Technical Practices Committee (TPC) from 2016 - 2019. I thoroughly enjoyed my tenure as co-chair of TPC and I am excited and honored to now be considered for a position on the Board of Directors.

I am an environmental scientist with over 19 years of experience in the environmental services industry. My experience includes conducting and overseeing hazardous waste site investigations and remediation activities at state and federally regulated sites for various contaminants. Additionally, I have a technical and analytical background in commercial laboratory testing of environmental media. My project experiences have ranged from property due diligence studies to large, complex, multi-year/phase investigations and remediation of hazardous waste sites. I have been active in the LSPA over the past eight years, served as TPC co-chair for three years, was an active committee member two years prior to becoming co-chair, and I was one of the panelists for the LSPA Emerging Professionals LSP application and exam preparation meeting in 2019. I have enjoyed the opportunity to have held a prior leadership role within the LSPA. This role allowed me the privilege to work with my industry peers on a variety of technical topics, which were in turn developed into resources by the committee for the benefit of the LSPA membership. In part, I credit my active involvement with the LSPA and TPC over the past years with helping to hone my professionalism and knowledge, which helped me to have the confidence in taking the step of successfully becoming an LSP in 2017.

I would like to thank the LSPA Canvassing and Nominating Committee for this opportunity to continue my service to the LSPA by joining the Board of Directors. If elected, I will bring my passion and enthusiasm for inspiring the next generation of leaders and working with other peers in the profession. I look forward to serving the LSPA membership and the opportunity to collaborate with the current board members in a setting that helps foster the continued education and advancement of environmental professionals.
